Skeleton Bones Activity: I have bones, please! ðŸ™ .Printable skeleton bones (available for free download at the end of this post) 1. That the child is pointed on paper and use the pitch to track around. My daughter couldn't stop making noise as she tracking her because she tickles. 2. Paint the paper, filling the outline. My daughter chose red paint to look like blood. A little disgusting and totally increased because she totally got into the spirit of this activity! You could skip the paint, but I recommend using a thick flash to delineate the body. Once our painting was dry we hung it on the wall to do the rest of the activity . 3. Talk about bones and place them on paper. While we discussed each bone we let it in our body and put ourselves to feel it. My daughter also liked to put the skeleton piece on her body before pasteing it to the paper. We talk about what the bone helps us to do (the ribs protect our heart and our lungs, the bones of the legs help us get up and walk, the fingers help us collect things ...). Skeleton Playdough Activity: Why do I have bones? Pin pleasee me! ðŸ™ ,make the child build the bodies using straws in one to represent the bones, and no straw in a second to represent a body without bones. If your child is having difficulty building a body you could have to build a leg with and without a straw to complete the activity. We find that it is more difficult to do each part, put a straw in it, and then cut the straw leaving the somatsalpa somatsalpa sol odnacn osulnici etrefuÁÁtnes es y oÁa osup es ajap ed souseh ed asam ed opreuc ortseun orep ,lib©Ád ^ÁÁtnis es y ^Áyac oseuh nis asam ed opreuc ortseuN ,eip ne solle ed onu adac a renop somatnetni ,noreicsh es ogeuj ed asam al ed senoicaerc sartseun euq ed s©Áupseð ,alrnu arap artxe So the skleks and Alitter, Rolucan eBany ,Quanes I have eveded that embalobéckéébóttobb, 40- Quanfen.
